This week at School

Headteacher's message

Back with a bang – what a smashing first week! It's hard to believe that we are at the start of Summer 2, heading into the final months of the academic year.

It's been a musical week here at Meva. On Monday, Reverend Stephen from St Peter's Church led an assembly where he performed songs on his beautiful 12-string guitar. He had the whole school singing along with him and having a good crack at the hand actions. I'm not sure how we will follow that in next Monday's assembly – I'm hoping Mrs Rees will be ready and eager to sing!

I was devastated to miss the big event that took place on Wednesday this week, but, luckily, Mrs Rees has sent me a write-up of the morning:

Seals were given a music lesson to remember as Mercury Prize-nominated Gwenno paid them a special visit.

Gwenno, who sings in the Cornish language as well as Welsh and English, ran a music workshop for the children themed around Cornish language and identity.

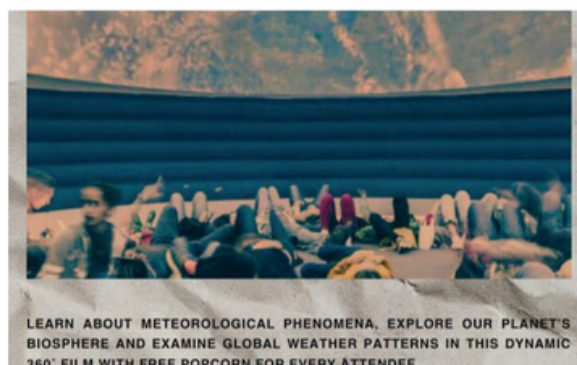

The workshop was delivered ahead of her appearance at the Heligan Homecoming Festival.

It was an exciting experience for the children having their own private gig, but also watching the TV crews work and record. They all behaved beautifully and asked Gwenno some great questions around her inspiration for writing her songs. Please see below for photos. adly, we had to postpone Sports Day due to the unpredictable weather. Let's hope we have some sunshine when we try again on Thursday 3rd July.

I want to say a big well done to the Year 4 pupils who are currently taking their Multiplication Checks. I know they have been working super hard on this and Miss Kelly is very proud of them all.

Next week is shaping up to be a truly action-packed week. Our friends at the Mevagissey Climate Action Group have organized for an Immersive Experience Dome to be set up in the hall on Monday... Yes, it's as cool as it sounds! See the poster. I wouldn't want to miss this – it looks amazing (and educational!). Year 5 and 6 are off on their Barton Hall residential from Wednesday to Friday and KS1 Children are attending live author events. Don't forget on Thursday we are holding a Father's Day Coffee and Cookie afternoon in the school hall. Thank you to Shelley, the Little Nippers Team and PTFA for organizing this event.

Hope you all have a great weekend,
Mr Ringrose
